Communicative English

Unit 1 : Reading Comprehension

Unit 2: Vocabulary

Unit 3 : Application Of English Grammar

Unit 4 : Formal Writing Skills

Unit 5 : Elements Of Communication

Unit 1 : Reading Comprehension

Reading involves a number of sub-skills.

1. Global Comprehension

In reading a text for meaning, it is desirable to go from the 'whole' to the 'parts', and not vice versa, as unskilled readers tend to do. A poor reader will pick up information from the text in small bits and pieces, as he/she reads from one word or one sentence to the next, and try to assemble the bits together. An efficient reader, on the other hand, will first try to form an over all 'picture' of the entire text.

'Global Comprehension', or the ability to get 'over-all' meaning from a text, requires the sub-skill of skimming i.e. reading through the text at high speed in order to identify and pick up the main idea or ideas in the text while 'filtering out' the unnecessary details.

2. Understanding the Plan of the Text

A good reader usually reads a text more than once in order to understand it adequately. The first reading is done at speed, with the intention of making a 'general survey' of the text. Then the reader returns to the text as many times as needed in order to fill in the details.
Efficient readers are able to form a 'plan' of the text that is being read, which helps them to recover meaning from it. Most texts – unless they are badly written – possess unity of thought. There is generally one central idea or 'theme' in the text, which is most prominent. There may be other ideas as well, but they are usually introduced in order to provide support for the main idea. The reader's mental plan helps him/her to 'navigate' through the text confidently instead of groping about blindly.

3. Making Predictions and Informed Guesses

An unskilled reader plods through a text laboriously, trying to get the meaning of every word. The skilled reader, after reading a few sentences, paragraphs or pages, is able to form a fairly accurate picture of what the author is trying to say, and is able to 'hop' and 'skip' through the text, omitting quite substantial portions of it without missing important information. Most writers have a tendency to repeat themselves in irder to ensure that their readers do not miss the significance of what they are saying; good readers are aware of this and know that portions of the text can be safely omitted.

Making reliable predictions about what is likely to be found in the text is an important sub-skill of reading.

4. Local Comprehension

After reading through the text quickly to form an overall impression, one should focus on the details of the information provided by the writer, which will generally be located in different parts of the text.

A reader begins by gathering the 'facts' presented by the author in the text. The term 'factual comprehension' refers to the ability to absorb and retrieve factual information contained in the text – i.e., information which has been explicitly stated by the writer and is directly available in the text. Factual comprehension must come before deeper and more thorough understanding of the text; unless one understands the 'plain sense' of the text, one cannot reach the other levels of comprehension.

Inferential comprehension refers to the reader's ability to 'read between the lines'. The reader has to understand not just what the writer has said but also what he/she might have said but has chosen to leave unsaid. This is done on the basis of clues provided in the text as well as the reader's own background knowledge.

Evaluative comprehension requires the reader to make a considered judgment on the truth and the value of what the writer is trying to say, and how far he/she has succeeded in saying it. This is a more sophisticated skill than the two previously referred to since the author has to respond to the text more critically to identify, among other things, the writer's bias, force and accuracy of argument and the effectiveness of what he/she is trying to say.

5. Guessing the meanings of Unfamiliar Words

Good readers tackle unknown words in a text by trying to guess their meanings from the context. It is not possible to look up the meanings of all unknown words in the dictionary. If the reader attempts to do that the flow of reading is interrupted. However, this is possible only when the text does not have too many difficult words.

6. Skimming an Scanning

'Skimming' a text means going through it quickly to get an overall idea of the content. We are not interested in details or any specific information while skimming.

'Scanning' on the other hand , involves searching the text for specific piece of information in which the reader is interested.

7. Understanding Discourse Markers

Discourse markers are 'signposts' provided by the writer. These are used in a text to indicate sequence of ideas and signal the writer's point of view. Understanding the writer's use of discourse markers is an important sub-skill of reading. These signposts are helpful because they indicate to the reader the relationship between two parts of the text.

8. Understanding the Organization of a Text

Every text contains a number of different ideas, which are presented in different parts of the text. The manner in which different ideas are related to each other in a text is referred to as the structure or organization of a text.
This is controlled by the topic, the writer's purpose and the audience that he/she has in mind. A good reader should be able to trace the organizational pattern in the text.

Once readers understand how a text is organized, they are better able to get meaning from a difficult text.

9. Note-Making

Note-making is a sub-skill of reading that is highly useful for study purposes. It involves understanding the organization of the text and being able to identify the main points and the supporting details, in skeleton or outline form.

Synonyms are not necessarily the same!

You see, they can be very similar, but they do not necessarily mean the same.

Here is a common example.

the following words are all synonyms. Their general meaning is "pleasant to look at."

There are however important nuances.

Look at the illustrations, read the definitions and see for yourself.

Pretty, beautiful, handsome... What's the difference?

Pretty	Beautiful	Handsome
Pretty = pleasant to look at.	Beautiful = (of a woman or girl) extremely delicate and pleasant to look at.	Handsome = pleasant to look at. (of a man)
Lovely	Ravishing	Good-looking
Lovely = (of someone that makes you have a strong feeling for them) graceful and very pleasant to look at.	Ravishing = very beautiful.	Good-looking = physically pleasant to look at.

Cute	Adorable	Gorgeous
Cute = (of someone young or something small) charming and pleasant to look at.	Adorable = very pleasant to look at and very easy to love.	Gorgeous = impressive and extremely pleasant to look at.

Here is another example to illustrate this point:

"To ask" means to say or write what you wish to happen.

"To request" means to say or write what you wish to happen, but it has a formal use.

In other words, you would use "ask" and "request" in different situations and contexts.

So it's not enough just to study a word's meaning and synonyms. You should also be aware of the subtle difference, nuances, and usage issues of each individual word.

Additional example:

One of the meanings of "hurt" is to "to be painful."

For example, "My back hurts like hell."

One synonym of "hurt" is "ache."

"To ache" means "to be painful, in a dull way." A dull pain means that it is not very strong, but it is continuous.

For example, "I've been standing for so long that now my feet ache."

So you see, "hurt" and "ache" are synonyms. Their meanings are indeed very similar, but not identical.

Antonyms

An antonym is a word that means the opposite of another word.

Antonym examples:

- old / new
- black / white
- strong / weak
- break / fix

Word origin: Greek, anti = opposite, onym = name

Homonyms

Homonyms are two words that are spelled the same and sound the same but have different meanings. ... Therefore, a homonym is a word that has the same name as another word, meaning that the two words look and sound exactly alike.

In English language, there are many words that spell the same but differ in meaning as per their usage. These are also called homographs. Based on their usage and functions, words are categorized into eight parts of speech. These words change their meaning in accordance to their usage. However the change in the meaning of the word occurs only when the word is used as a noun, adjective, verb and adverb.

To understand this better, let us look at some examples:

CLEAN

1. The cottage needs a good clean.
2. He clean forgot about dropping the letters in the post box.
3. The entertainment was good clean fun for the whole family.
4. He cleaned up his act and came off drugs.

In the above example, we have used the word clean and used it in 4 different sentences, each signifying a different meaning, along with its usage as different parts of speech.

Sentence A - The cottage needs a good clean. The word clean in this sentence means the act or an instance of cleaning. Since this is an act, hence it is a noun.

Sentence B - He clean forgot about dropping the letters in the post box. The meaning of the word clean in this sentence is completely, and since it is modifying the word forgot which a verb (action word) is, it is an adverb.

Sentence C - The entertainment was good clean fun for the whole family. In this case, the meaning of the word clean is fit for everyone, nothing obscene. The word in this case is modifying fun, which is a noun; hence the word here is an adjective.

Sentence D - He cleaned up his act and came off drugs. In this case the word cleans means to rid of undesirable features. Clean has been used to denote an action, and hence in this case it is a verb.

LIGHT

1. The new lamp had good light for reading.
2. Magnesium is a light metal.
3. Rahul likes to travel light.
4. The choice lighted on me.

Sentence A - The new lamp had good light for reading. In this the word light is being is used to mean a particular quality or type of light. And also it has been used as a noun.

Sentence B - Magnesium is a light metal. In this the word is used to mean having relatively low density, also since it is used to describe the word metal which is a noun, it is an adjective.

Sentence C - Rahul likes to travel light. In this, the word light means little equipment, baggage, etc.

Sentence D - the choice lighted on me. In this the word light is used to denote an action thus it is verb and it means to strike or fall on. Some of the similar kinds of words are:

LOVE

We love you. (Here, love is a verb as it is showing the action in terms of expressing an emotion)

Love is blind. (Here, Love is a noun as it is a name of an emotion)

WATER

We drink water. (Here, water is a noun as it is name of the thing)

They water the plants. (Here, water is a verb as here it means giving water to plants i.e. an action)

This is a water pipe. (Here, water is a adjective as it is describing pipe which is a noun)

The heavens showered blessings from above. (Here, 'above' is used as a noun)

She is above average in intelligence. (Here, above is a preposition as here it is showing the position or the status of the pronoun 'she')

Analyze the above sentence. (Here, above is an adjective as it telling something about the noun 'sentence')

FAST

He did not take anything during the fast. (It names something, so it is a noun)

Muslims fast during Ramazan. (This is an activity, so fast is a verb)

She speaks fast. (This becomes adverb here as it is describing a verb i.e.)

I have pain in the back. (It is a noun here)

I will come back in 5 minutes. (It is an adverb here, as it describes verb- come)

Have you closed the back door.(It is describing a noun-door, so it is an adjective)

He backed his car through the gate. (Back is used as a verb here)

NEAR

He lives near the station. (Near is a preposition here)

He got nervous as the examinations neared. (Here, it is a verb)

Most of my near relatives live abroad. (Here, it is used as an adjective for noun-relatives)

I went near enough to see over it. (Near is an adverb here which described enough)

Thus from these examples it is implicit that with different usage, the same word in English language can have different meanings.

Unit-III

APPLICATION OF ENGLISH GRAMMAR

Countable an Uncountable Noun

Countable nouns have two forms: singular and plural.

Singular countable nouns refer to one person or thing:

a teacher	a book	a wish	an idea

Plural count nouns refer to more than one person or thing:

teachers	books	wishes	ideas

Singular countable nouns

Singular count nouns cannot be used alone. They must have a determiner:

the English teacher	that book	a wish	my latest idea

Plural countable nouns

We usually add –s to make a plural noun:

book	>	*books
school	>	*schools
friend	>	*friends

We add –es to nouns ending in –s, –ch, –sh, –ss, –x and –o:

class	>	classes
watch	>	watches
gas	>	gases
wish	>	wishes
box	>	boxes
potato	>	potatoes

When a noun ends in a consonant and –y, we make the plural with –ies:

lady	>	ladies
country	>	countries
party	>	parties

If a noun ends in a vowel and –y, we simply add –s:

boy	>	boys
day	>	days

*play	>	*plays

Some common nouns have irregular plurals:

man	>	men
woman	>	women
child	>	children
person	>	people
foot	>	feet

Plural count nouns do not have a general determiner when they refer to people or things in general:
Computers are very expensive. Do
you sell old books?

But they may have a specific determiner:

Those computers are very expensive.
The books in that shop are very expensive.

Her sisters live there. or a quantifier:

some new books	a few teachers	lots of good ideas

or a numeral:

two new books	three wishes

Uncountable nouns

Some nouns in English are uncountable nouns. We do not use uncountable nouns in the plural and we do not use them with the indefinite article a/an:

We ate a lot of food. (NOT ~~foods~~)
We bought some new furniture. (NOT ~~furnitures~~) That's useful information. (NOT ~~a useful information~~) We can use some quantifiers with uncountable nouns:

He gave me some useful advice.
They gave us a lot of information.

Uncountable nouns often refer to:

Substances: food, water, wine, salt, bread, iron
Human feelings or qualities: anger, cruelty, happiness, honesty, pride
Activities: help, sleep, travel, work
Abstract ideas: beauty, death, fun, life

Common uncountable nouns
Some common nouns in English like information are uncountable nouns even though they have plurals in other languages:

advice	accommodation	baggage	equipment
furniture	homework	knowledge	luggage
machinery	money	news	traffic

Let me give you some advice.
How much luggage have you got?*

If we want to make these things countable, we use expressions like:

a piece of ...	a bit of ...	an item of ...
pieces of ...	bits of ...	items of ...

Let me give you a piece of advice.
That's a useful piece of equipment.
We bought a few bits of furniture for the new apartment. She had six separate items of luggage.

However, accommodation, money and traffic cannot be made countable in this way. We need to use other expressions:

I've lived in three flats/apartments. (NOT ~~bits of accommodation~~)
Smith received three large sums of money. (NOT ~~pieces of money~~)
We got stuck in two traffic jams. (NOT ~~pieces of traffic~~)

Determiners and quantifiers

Determiners and quantifiers are words we use in front of nouns. We use determiners to identify things (this book, my sister) and we use quantifiers to say how much or how many (a few people, a lot of problems). Specific and general determiners

Determiners are words which come at the beginning of noun phrases. They tell us whether a noun phrase is specific or general.

Specific determiners

The specific determiners are:

- the definite article: the

- possessives: my, your, his, her, its, our, their, whose

- demonstratives: this, that, these, those

We use a specific determiner when we believe the listener/reader knows exactly what we are referring to:

Can you pass me the salt, please?
Thank you very much for your letter.
Whose coat is this?*
Look at those lovely flowers.

General determiners

We use a general determiner when we are talking about things in general and the listener/reader does not know exactly what we are referring to.

The general determiners are:

a/an	0 (no determiner)		any	another	other

The most frequent general determiner is the indefinite article a/an used with singular nouns:

A man came this morning and left a parcel. He was wearing a big coat and a cap.

We use no determiner with plural nouns and uncountable nouns:

Girls normally do better in school than boys. (plural nouns)
Milk is very good for you. (uncount noun)
Health and education are very important. (uncountable nouns)

We use the general determiner any with a singular noun or an uncountable noun when we are talking about all of those people or things:

It's very easy. Any child can do it. = All children can do it.
With a full licence you are allowed to drive any car. = all cars
I like bananas, oranges, apples – any fruit. = all kinds of fruit

(Note that any is also used as a quantifier in negative and interrogative sentences.)

We use the general determiner another to talk about an additional person or thing:

Would you like another glass of wine?

The plural form of another is other:

I spoke to John, Helen and a few other friends.

The indefinite article: 'a' and 'an'

We use the indefinite article, a/an, with singular nouns when the listener/reader does not know exactly which one we are referring to:

Police are searching for a 14-year-old girl.

We also use it to show that the person or thing is one of a group:

She is a pupil at London Road School.

Police have been looking for a 14-year-old girl who has been missing since Friday.

Jenny Brown is a pupil at London Road School. She is 1.6 metres tall, with short, blonde hair. When she left home, she was wearing a blue jacket, a blue and white blouse, dark blue jeans and blue shoes.

Anyone who has information should contact the local police on 0800 349 781.
We do not use an indefinite article with plural nouns or uncountable nouns:

She was wearing blue shoes. (plural noun) She has short, blonde hair.

(uncountable noun) We use a before a consonant sound: a banana (starts with /b/)   a university (starts with /j/)

and an before a vowel sound:

an orange (starts with /o/)   an hour (starts with /au/)

Note that the choice of a or an depends on sound, not spelling.

The definite article: 'the'

The definite article the is the most frequent word in English.

We use the definite article in front of a noun when we believe the listener/reader knows exactly what we are referring to:

* because there is only one:

   The Pope is visiting Russia.*
   The moon is very bright tonight.*
   Who is the president of France?

   This is why we use the definite article with a superlative adjective:

   He is the tallest boy in the class.
   It is the oldest building in the town.

* because there is only one in that context:

   We live in a small house next to the church. (= the church in our village)
   Dad, can I borrow the car? (= the car that belongs to our family) When we stayed at my grandmother's house, we went to the beach every day. (= the beach near my grandmother's house) Look at the boy over there. (= the boy I am pointing at)
* because we have already mentioned it:

   A young man got a nasty shock when he tried to rob a jewellery shop in Richmond. The man used a heavy hammer to smash the windows in the shop.

We also use the definite article:

- to say something about all the things referred to by a noun:

The wolf is not really a dangerous animal. (= Wolves are not really dangerous animals.)
The kangaroo is found only in Australia. (= Kangaroos are found only in Australia.)
The heart pumps blood around the body. (= Hearts pump blood around bodies.)

We use the definite article in this way to talk about musical instruments:

Joe plays the piano really well. She is learning the guitar.

- to refer to a system or service:

How long does it take on the train?
I heard it on the radio.
You should tell the police.

MODALS

Secondary auxiliaries are also called modals. They cannot be used independently like primary auxiliaries. They are 13(thirteen) in numbers: will, would, shall, should, may, might, can, could, must, need, used to, ought to, dare. In this chapter we will discuss them under different points with reference to their logical meaning.

    *i.   Will, Would, Shall (Expressing requests, offers, willingness and suggestions) Use:

        (a) Expressing Requests.
            Will/ Would you please open the door?
            Would you mind lending me your book, please?
        (b) Expressing attitude, willingness/ unwillingness.
            She will pay back you soon.
            He won't listen to anyone.
            They wouldn't stop making noise.

        (c) Giving Consent.
            I will do shopping for you.
            She won't do the mistake again.

        (d) Offering Service.
            Shall I get you a pen?
            Shall I arrange a taxi for you?

(e) Asking for suggestions.
 What shall we do about this barren land?   Where shall I spend my night?

ii.   Should, Ought to.
 (Expressing advice and probability) Use:

(a) Advice
 We should / ought to help the one in need.   We should not tell unpleasant truth. We ought to serve our motherland.

(b) Necessary to observe, perform and obey.
 I should do as my mother says.
 I think, you should meet the doctor.
 She should inform the police about the theft.

(c) Probability
 They ought to have arrived by lunch time, but the train was late.
 Prashanti Express should reach at 5 pm.

iii.   May, Might, Can, Could (Expressing ability, possibility, probability)

(a) Ability
 Birds can fly, but animals can't.
 My grandfather can't walk firmly.
 I could swim fast while I was in school.

(b) Possibility
 I could come back this evening.
 He may not agree to my proposal.
 It may rain tonight.
 She might accept the offer.

(c) Probability
 The keys may be in the drawer.
 The pain might belong to Goldie.
 The bridge could be blocked.

(d) Asking and Giving   permission

Can/could/may/might I ask you a question?
Can/may I go out, sir?
Could I talk to you over the issue?

iv. Must, Mustn't, Need, Needn't

(Expressing necessity, obligation)

(a) Necessity
We must obey the traffic rules.
We mustn't play with fire.
You mustn't work hard.
I need wearing glasses.
I can see better now. I needn't wear glasses.

(b) Obligations
I must leave for the station at once.
One mustn't misbehave others.
We need to be honest.

v. Used to:
Used to is used to denote simple past only.

We used to live in Cuttack during my father's service period. There used to be a house near the temple a couple of years back. vi. Dare:

Auxiliary dare is used in sense of making a challenging effort. It does not take an _s in third person singular number.

How dare you talk to me in my face?   He daren't go outside in the dark.

ACTIVITY SET

Fill-in the blanks with appropriate modals.

TENSE

Time and Tenses:

Time and Tenses are not identical to each other. We can divide time into three different phases: Past, Present and Future. But when we express time in relation to the action done or going to be done we call it tense. Tense is of two types: Past and Present. Future is time not a tense.

In the simplest way, if we put, tense is the form of the verb which denotes an action, with its degree of completeness in relation to time period. Each tense has got four different forms showing degree of completeness of action. They are simple, progressive, perfect and perfect progressive. Here we will discuss them technically.

Tense	Form	Example showing verb form
Present Tense	Simple Present	He writes stories.
	Present Progressive	He is writing a story.
	Present Perfect	He has written a story.

	Present Perfect Progressive	He has been writing a story since yesterday.
Past Tense	Simple Past	He wrote stories.
	Past Progressive	He was writing stories.
	Past Perfect	He had written a story.
	Past Perfect Progressive	He had been writing stories.

Use:

(A) Simple Present Tense form:

1. It denotes a habitual action.
   It rains a lot in Andaman.   I never eat outside.

2. It denotes the present state. We live in Bhubaneswar.

   My daughter loves milk-cakes.

3. It expresses universal and scientific truths.

   The sun sets in the west.
   Oil floats on water.

(B) Simple Past Tense form:

1. It indicates an already completed action.

   She cooked.
   They played hockey.

2. It denotes a past habit.

   I took morning walk daily two years back.

   Nehru loved roses.

(C) Present Progressive Tense form:

1. It denotes an action that continues at the time of speaking about it.

> My daughter is watching POGO.   It is raining now.

2. It denotes an action that is running simultaneously with another action in present progressive form.

> While he is singing, his sister is dancing.

(D) Past Progressive Tense form:

1. It denotes an action that is continued in past while speaking about it. She was reading a poem.

2. It denotes an action that is continued while another action took place in between the action that happens during the course of continuous action remains in simple past tense form.

> My student rang me while I was cooking.

(E) Present Perfect Tense form:

1. It denotes an action that is just finished.

> I have finished my home work.

2. It denotes an action whose state leads upto the present.

> She has been ill since three days.

(F) Past Perfect Tense form:

1. It denotes an action that was finished before a particular time in the past.

> It was 11 PM then. He had gone to bed.
> The house has been unoccupied for five years.

2. When two actions took place in the past, the former action remained in past perfect and the later one in simple past tense form.

> By the time the doctor arrived, the patient had already died.

(G) Present Perfect Progressive Tense form:

It denotes an action that has started sometimes beck in the past and continues at the time of speaking about it.

He has been working alone till the assistant arrived.

(H) Past Perfect Progressive Tense form:

It is the past equivalent of present perfect progressive tense form.

His hands were dirty. He had been washing the floors.

ACTIVE AND PASSIVE VOICE

The voice of a verb shows whether the Subject is active or passive. The verb is active if the subject performs an action, passive if the subject receives an action; as

Subject	Verb	Object
The boy	writes	a letter.
A letter	is written	by the boy.

In the first sentence the subject boy acts; in the second sentence the subject a letter receives the action.

The object a letter of the active verb becomes the subject a letter of the passive verb. Since Transitive verbs have objects, only transitive verbs have passive voice. The passive voice of the verb is made by adding its particle to some form of the verb be.

Table showing passive voice

Note: the active voice is more direct and more forceful than the passive. But there are legitimate uses for the passive; as,

(a) To eliminate mention of the agent:
   He was found sealing.
   Food was distributed among the famine-stricken.

(b) To emphasize the recipient of an action:
   Raju's house was burgled last night.
   The prime minister was given a warm welcome.

Tense	How to form passive	Sentence	From active into
1. Simple present	Is/am/are + Past Particle	I am helped. He is helped.
2. Simple past	Was/were + Past Particle	I was helped. We were helped.
3. Simple future	Shall be/will + be + Past Particle	I shall be helped. He will be helped.
4. Present continuous 5. Past continuous	Is / am/are + being + Past Particle	I am being helped. He is being helped.
	Was/were + being + Past Particle	I was being helped. We were being helped.
6. Present perfect	Have/has + being + Past Particle	I have been helped. He has been helped.
7. Past perfect	Had + been + Past Particle	I had been helped.
8. Future perfect	Shall/will have + been + Past Particle	I shall have been helped. He will have been helped.

passive

When a sentence is turned from active voice into passive voice, the following changes are made:

1. The object in the active voice becomes the subject in the passive voice.

2. The subject in the active voice becomes the object in the passive voice.

3. The passive voice of the verb is made by adding its past particle to some form of the verb be (is, am, are, was, were, been, being). \

I.   Simple present tense

Active   :   He helps me

Passive   :   I am helped by him.

Active   :   We see an aeroplane.

Passive   :   An aeroplane is seen by us.

Active   :   She sings a song.

Passive   :   A sung is song by her.

II.   Simple past tense

Active : We killed a cobra.

Passive: A cobra was killed by us.

Active : The fisherman caught a fish.

Passive: A fish was caught by the fisherman.

Active   :   You made many mistakes.

Passive   :   Many mistakes were made by you.

III.   Simple future

Active   :   I shall read a book.

Passive   :   A book will be read by me.

Active   :   She will like oranges.

Passive   :   Oranges will be liked by her.

Active   :   Will you deliver the letters?

Passive   :   Will the letters be delivered by you?

IV.   Continuous test (present and past)   Active   :   I am seeing a tiger.

Passive   :   A tiger is being seen by me.

Active   :   They are singing songs.

Passive   :   Songs are being sung by them.

Active   :   Gurmit was driving a car.

Passive   :   A car was being driven by Gurmit.

V.   Perfect tense (present, past & future)   Active   :

He has sold a horse.

Passive   :   A horse has been sold by him.
                        You have made many mistakes.

                        Many mistakes have been made by you.

Active   :   She will have read the book.

Passive   :   The book will have been read by her.

VI.   Interrogative sentences   Active   :   Does he see a bird?

Passive   :   Is a bird seen by him?

Active   :   Did she sing a song?

Passive   :   Was a song sung by her?

Active   :   Will they help you?

Passive   :   Will you be helped by them?

Active   :   Is he reciting a poem?

Passive   :   Is a poem being recited by him?

Active   :   Was he reading a newspaper?

Passive   :   Was a newspaper being read by him?

VII.   Prepositional Verbs

While changing a prepositional verb from active to passive voice, the preposition should not be dropped, as it is a part of the verb.

Active   :   Mothers bring up children.

Passive   :   Children are brought up by mothers.

They laughed at the old man.

Active : Passive :

The old man was laughed at by them.
I objected to his proposal.

His proposal was objected to by me.

VIII.   Auxiliary Verbs

While changing auxiliary verbs into passive, add be and the past participle with them.

Active   :   Our team may win the match.

Passive   :   The match may be won by our team.

Active   :   We should always speak the truth.

Passive   :   The truth should always be spoken by 81 us.

Active	:	You must not do it.

Passive	:	It must not be done by you.	IX.

Imperative sentences

In imperative sentences, 'let be' is used to change the voice, if the sentence is to remain imperative; otherwise, 'should be' can also be used; as

Active	:	Read this story.

Passive	:	Let this story be read. Or

This story should be read.

Active	:	Open the window.

Passive	:	Let the window be opened. Or

The window should be opened.

Active	:	Don't pick flowers.

Passive	:	Let flowers not be picked. Or Flowers should not be picked.

Note:

In case of transitive verbs, the imperative sentence is changed into passive voice like this:

Active	:	Please sit down.
Passive	:	You are requested to sit down.
Active	:	Stand up.
Passive	:	You are ordered to stand up.
Active	:	Work hard.
Passive	:	You are advised to work hard.

X. Typical sentences

Active	:	It is time to say our prayers.
Passive	:	It is time for our prayers to be said.
Active	:	It is time to take exercise.
Passive	:	It is time for exercise to be taken.
Active	:	The jug contains milk.
Passive	:	Milk is contained in the jug.
Active	:	You have to do it.
Passive	:	It has to be done by you.
Active	:	The room needs sweeping.
Passive	:	The room needs to be swept.

Honey tastes sweet.
Honey is sweet when tasted.

CONCORD (Subject-Verb agreement)

When the verb agrees with the subject in number and person, it is known as subject-verb agreement or concord. In different situation subject is considered as singular or plural. In this chapter we will discuss different conditions responsible for designating the subject either to be singular or plural and the verb following it.

1. When two singular subjects are joined by 'and' and denote a single unit of meaning, together they are considered to be singular and the verb that follows becomes singular.

   > Time and tide waits for none.
   > Rice and dal is my daily food.

2. When two singular subjects are joined by 'and' and express plurality, verb that follows becomes plural.

   > Fish and meat are available here.
   > Pens and pencils are essentials for writing.

3. When two subjects irrespective of their person and number are joined by with/together with, the verb follows the former subject.

   > The letter with/together with the photographs is sent back by post.

4. When two subjects irrespective of their person and number are joined by or/either…or/neither…nor/nor, the verb agrees with the nearer subject.
   > Either the students or the teacher is invited to the party.
   > Neither the cock nor the hens are in the yard.
   > He or his sisters are to manage the show.

5. A sentence beginning with each of / none of/ the number of has a singular verb.

          Each of/none of the students is to get a prize.
          The number of afflicted people is increasing in the camp.

6. Some nouns which are singular in meaning but plural in form, take singular verbs with them.

          Physics is my favorite subject.
          The news is not correct.

7. Pair nouns take plural verbs with them. The scissors are blunt.

          Your trousers do not fit me.

8. A collective noun considered as a single whole, takes a singular verb. The Jury is not in favour of the public opinion.

          The Government is ready to pass the new education bill.

9. Uncountable nouns are singular and therefore, take singular verbs with them.
          The furniture looks bright.
          Honesty is the best policy.
          25 kg of rice is heavy to carry.
          75 km is not a long distance.

ACTIVITY SET
Supply suitable verb in agreement with its subjects to fill-in the blanks.

1. Petroleum _____ a natural resource.

2. Either he or his wife _____ made this plea.

3. Such information _____ entertaining.
4. The lady with her children _____ waiting at the bus stop.

5. The thirds of the temple _____ in twins.

6. Neither of the systems _____ perfect.

7. Two litres of oil _____ not a big quantity.

8. Two and two ___ four.

9. These glasses _____ not mine.

PARAGRAPH WRITING

A paragraph is a group of sentences written in order to convey a concept. Look at the following two groups of sentences in A & B.

A : All soils have different water holding capacities/some soils hold a lot of water/some soils hold a little water/sandy soils do not hold water/water passes through sandy soils quickly/clay soils do not absorb water/water runs off clay soils…..

B: All types of soils possess water holding capacities. Infact, some soils hold more water in comparison to some other types. For example, sandy soils do not retain water as it passes through too quickly. It is also observed that clay soils do not absorb water and it runs off.

Observation:

In group-A the sentences are completed and correct but set loosely. Group-B has an orderly lay out and present an idea in a clear way.

Paragraphs are basic unit of organization in written language. They follow certain basic structural rules and regulations known as feature of paragraph writing. Technical feature of paragraph writing   Topic Statement:

A paragraph develops on one idea and it is conveyed through the title or subject or topic. The entire subject matter of the paragraph revolves around this given idea. It introduces the paragraph and therefore is called as title or topic statement. The following is a paragraph. It is followed by three possible topic statements or topic sentences. Let us see which one best introduces the passage.

Straw, which can absorb upto four times its weight in oil, can be thrown on the spill and then be burned. Oil can be taken up and sunk by sand, talcum powder or chalk. Under experimentation, some chemical have been shown to disperse the spill into droplets which microbes can destroy them.

  i. There are many ways in which oil spills in the sea can be dealt with.
  ii. Contamination of the sea by oil spills is a critical problem. iii. Wind and wave action can carry oil spills a great distance across the sea.

Observation

The paragraph gives an idea about the different method of absorbing oil spills. Therefore, the first statement can provide a suitable topic for the paragraph, but in a brief manner such as dealing oil spills in the sea.

Materials:

Stuffs of a paragraph are known as material. Materials of a paragraph are to be selected carefully in relation to the main idea or the topic statement. Unwanted details are not to be allowed into the arena of the paragraph writing. A topic sentence like recently discovered tracks provide information about Dinosaurs can have the following materials for growth and development of a paragraph on it.

 i. Important dinosaur tracks have been found in the same old place. ii. Previous finding was near the ancient sea.

 iii. Tracks are informative; they appear to be combination of young and the old ones. iv. Adult dinosaurs may weigh as much as 10,000 pounds and be 2.3 ft tall.

 v. The dinosaur tracks are in sequence of 8 to 10 paces.

The above points are directly related to given topic and the serve as material for paragraph writing.

Supporting points:

Materials when arranged into well developed points, we call them supporting points. Let us see how the above supplied materials are put as supporting points.

i.   Important dinosaur tracks have been found near the ancient sea.

ii.   These recently discovered track supply important information about dinosaurs.

iii.   There appear to be tracks of young dinosaurs near the older ones.
iv.
       Dinosaurs may weigh as much as 10,000 pounds and be 2.3 ft tall.

v.   The tracks are in sequence of 8 to 10 paces.

Unity of thought:

The writer should take enough care to maintain unity of thought while writing the paragraph. In order to achieve the purpose,

- The topic statement should convey the theme of the paragraph;

- The supporting points should be linked directly to the theme; and

- No unwanted details are to be entertained into the plot of the paragraph.

Coherence:

The orderly arrangement or a set pattern of the supporting points provides coherence to the paragraph. It guards against any jerks in the flow of ideas and the reader enjoys a smooth ride.

Types of paragraph writing

Entering into the world of paragraph writing would be a varied and dynamic attempt as paragraph on various topics from different branches of learning demand specific skills of writing. Therefore we would here concentrate on a couples of types of paragraph writing with reference to the requirement.

Paragraph writing is an innovative area that requires writing skills such as vocabulary proficiency, structural efficiency and technical narrative delicacy. These skills are to be employed within the area of technical features of paragraph writing.

There are two types of paragraph writing:

A. General-specific

B. Process-description

A. General-specific type of paragraph writing:

Concept: this type of paragraph begins with a general statement on the topic and gradually grows by adding more and more specific details to it. Hence, it is called so.

Features: these paragraphs are written in a straight forward mode. There is no necessity of using an indirect speech or a complex statement to present the idea.

The writer has the liberty to opt for smooth ride of idea as well as easy flow of reaching the conclusion.

The example below would better represent the type.

Paragraph

The Evil of Tobacco

The evil of tobacco in its myriad form has gripped our society. There are 25 tobacco related diseases including cancer, lung, and heart diseases that play havoc with their deadly effects. As per the data there are 1.84 crore smokers in India. No one is spared. This evil not only affects this 1.84 crore active smokers, but also leaves its marks on the passive smokers who never touched a cigarette in its life. It seems, the recent ban on smoking and tobacco related advertisements is of little use as the number of tobacco smokers is growing daily. About 2200 people die daily in tobacco related diseases. There is an urgent need to close down the tobacco industries if we want to eliminate this evil from its root. At the same time an awareness campaign needs to be launched nationwide in order to save precious and innocent lives. It is quite alarming to know that 19% smoke cigarettes, 54% smoke bids and 27% chew tobacco. Anyone found buying or selling tobacco and its products should be severely punished. Only then can we rid our country of this fatal scourge. B. Process Description Type of Paragraph writing:

Concept: This type of paragraph conveys the description of a process followed in doing out any kind of job or work or activity. It is a logical and factual description of a process.

Features: These paragraphs are written in a stepwise mode. The writer depends upon spontaneous and continuous narration of factual and objective details. The steps of process lead from one to the other. These paragraphs bear a clear scientific approach to the topic stated.

Paragraph:

Preparation of Rice-husk Cement

Rice-husk cement is a low-cost product used as a house building material. At first equal weight of rice-husk and limesludge (waste lime in sugar and other industries) are taken. Initially they are mixed thoroughly to get a smooth dough. Particular size cakes are prepared from this dough and left under sunlight until they are completely dried. Then these cakes are carried to an open place and arranged properly. The arrangement looks like a building in structure and the structure in burnt into ashes. Ash is collected after the fire extinguishes to a cool point. Finally this ash is taken into the grinding chamber to be ground to fine powder.

Subsequently this fine powder is used as rice-husk cement.

UNIT-IV FORMAL WRITING SKILLS

Notice

Notices are a means of formal communication targetted at a particular person or a group of persons. It is like a news item informing such person or persons of some important event. This can be an invitation to a meeting, an announcement of any event, to issue certain instructions, make appeals etc.

It is generally written and then displayed at a public place, where it is accessible to all. They can be pasted on notice boards. If it is meant for a wider audience it can even be published in a newspaper. The government when it issues notices must publish it in national and local papers.

Format

Since notices are a formal document it should follow a structure or a format. Keep in mind there is no one correct rigid format. Different formats used by different people/organizations can show some variations. But it is ideal to follow a somewhat similar format for ease of understanding and uniformity. Let us look at the most used format of notices.

1. Name of Issuing Organization/Authority: Right at the very top, you print the name of the person or company that is issuing the said notices. This will help the reader identify the notices as important or unimportant to him.

2. Title: When writing notices we mention a title "NOTICE" at the top. This helps draw attention to the document. Notices are generally posted at a public place or published in newspapers. It is important that they do not get lost in a sea of information. So a bold title clearly mentioned helps draw the attention.

3. Date: After the tile to the left-hand side we print the date on which the notices have been published. Since this is a formal document date is an important aspect of it since these documents stay on record.
4. Heading: Then we move on to an appropriate heading to the notices. This heading should make abundantly clear the purpose of the notices.

5. Body: After the heading, we write the brief and to the point body of the notice. The main content of the notice features in the body.

6. Writer's Name: At the end of the notices we write the name and designation of the notice-writer. The notices have to also be signed by the same person to lend it authority and validity.

Content

Notices should cover some important points that are to be communicated to the readers. Let us summarize the five points that the content of the notice will cover, the five W's

1. What: What is the notice about? The notice should be clear about what is going to happen (event), or what has already happened (occasion). This is the crux of the message and should be written clearly. There should not be any ambiguity.

2. Where: If the notice is about an event, then the location of such an event must be written clearly. The venue or the location are important details, so make sure to include this in the notice.

3. When: This is the time and the date of the event or meeting. If possible the duration of the event should also be mentioned to people can schedule their time accordingly.

4. Who: This will be who the notice is addressed to. Who all are suppose to adhere to the notice should be clearly mentioned to avoid confusion.

5. Whom: And final detail should be whom to contact or get in touch with. This mentions who the appropriate authority is to contact.

Tips to Remember regarding Notice Writing

- Be precise and to the point. The ideal length of notice is 50 words, so precise language is appreciated. • It is a formal form of communication so the language used should be formal as well. No flowery text.

- Keep the sentences short and use simple words. Since notices are fairly brief it is best to keep it simple.
- Use passive voice as far as possible.

- Present your notices in a proper format in a box. The presentation should be neat and thus be appealing to the eye.

Report Writing

What is a Report?

Essentially, a report is a short, sharp, concise document which is written for a particular purpose and audience. It generally sets outs and analyses a situation or problem, often making recommendations for future action. It is a factual paper, and needs to be clear and well-structured.

Report Writing Format

Here are the main sections of the standard report writing format:

- Title Section – This includes the name of the author(s) and the date of report preparation.

- Summary – There needs to be a summary of the major points, conclusions, and recommendations. It needs to be short as it is a general overview of the report. Some people will read the summary and only skim the report, so make sure you include all the relevant information. It would be best to write this last so you will include everything, even the points that might be added at the last minute.

- Introduction – The first page of the report needs to have an introduction. You will explain the problem and show the reader why the report is being made. You need to give a definition of terms if you did not include these in the title section, and explain how the details of the report are arranged.

- Body – This is the main section of the report. There needs to be several sections, with each having a subtitle. Information is usually arranged in order of importance with the most important information coming first.

- Conclusion – This is where everything comes together. Keep this section free of jargon as most people will read the Summary and Conclusion.

- Recommendations – This is what needs to be done. In plain English, explain your recommendations, putting them in order of priority.
- Appendices – This includes information that the experts in the field will read. It has all the technical details that support your conclusions.

Sample Report

Typical structure template for writing a committee report:

- Members to which the report is meant for

- [Name, institution, location, Chair]

- [Name, institution, location, member]

- [Date, Time, and Location]

- [Provide simple documentation of any meetings of the committee or subset of the committee, in whatever mode and format, e.g., in person, conference call, etc.]

- Purpose

- [Here you mention the purpose of the report in a brief. This enables the reader to understand the purpose behind writing the format.]

- Issues [Write different issues as sub headings and explain their highlights in bullet points below the respective sub headings]

- Current Status

- •

- •

- Accomplishments / Issue 1

- •

- •

- Future Goals

- •

- •

- Near-Term Plans / Main Body of the Report [Use Sub Headings as and where needed. In bullet form, outline near-term actions and plans as well under those sub headings.]

- Informal Recommendation(s) [An opportunity to make recommendations, suggestions, and comments to the Board and Executive Director]

Respectfully Submitted,

[<Author's Name>]

Business Letter

Business Letter Template Fields:

Date: Use month, day, year format, e.g., March 3, 20xx or 3 March 20xx Sender's Address: It is a good idea to include sender's email and url, if available. Don't include this information if it's already incorporated into the letterhead design. This will allow customers to find your small business more quickly.

Inside Address: Use full name. Mr./Ms. is optional

Salutation: Be sure to use a colon at the end of the name, not a comma as in personal letters

Body Text: State why you are writing. Establish any connection/mutual relationship up front. Outline the solution, providing proof in the way of examples and expert opinions. Group related information into paragraphs
Closing "Call to Action": State what the reader needs to do and what you will do to follow up

Signature Block: Sign your letter in blue or black ink

Enclosures: Use if you have an enclosure

Carbon Copy: Use if you are sending a copy to additional person(s)

Dear Human Resources Director:

I just read an article in the News and Observer about Taylor's new computer center just north of Durham. I would like to apply for a position as an entry-level programmer at the center.

I understand that Taylor produces both in-house and customer documentation. My technical writing skills, as described in the enclosed resume, are well suited to your company. I am a recent graduate of DeVry Institute of Technology in Atlanta with an Associate's Degree in Computer Science. In addition to having taken a broad range of courses, I served as a computer consultant at the college's computer center where I helped train users to work with new systems.

I will be happy to meet with you at your convenience and discuss how my education and experience match your needs. You can reach me at my home address, at (919) 233-1552, or at krock@devry.alumni.edu.

Sincerely,
Raymond Krock

Dear Ms. Jones:

I am seeking a position in your engineering department where I may use my training in computer sciences to solve Taylor's engineering problems. I would like to be a part of the department that developed the Internet Selection System but am unsure whether you have a current opening.

I expect to receive a Bachelor of Science degree in Engineering from North Carolina State University in June and by that time will have completed the Computer Systems Engineering Program. Since September 2000, I have been participating, through the University, in the Professional Training Program at Computer Systems International in Raleigh. In the program I was assigned to several staff sections as an apprentice. Most recently, I have been a programmer trainee in the Engineering Department and have gained a great deal of experience in computer applications. Details of the academic courses I have taken are included in the enclosed resume.

If there is a position open at Taylor Inc., please let me know whom I should contact for further information. I look forward to hearing from you soon. I may be reached at my office (919-866-4000 ext. 232) or via email (Brock@aol.com).

Sincerely,

Rebecca Brock

Dear Mr. Smith,

I was so excited when my former coworker, Jay Lopez, told me about your opening for an administrative assistant in your Portland offices. A long-time Veggies to Go customer and an experienced admin, I would love to help the company achieve its mission of making healthy produce as available as takeout.

I've worked for small companies for my entire career, and I relish the opportunity to wear many hats and work with the team to succeed. In my latest role as an administrative assistant at Beauty Corp, I saved my employer thousands of dollars in temp workers by implementing a self-scheduling system for the customer service reps that cut down on canceled shifts. I also learned web design, time sheet coding, and perfected my Excel skills.

I've attached my resume for your consideration and hope to speak with you soon about your needs for the role.

Best Regards,

CV

The term CV is an abbreviation of the Latin word Curriculum Vitae, which is literally translated to "the course of your life".

A CV is a very in-depth document that describes your career journey stepby-step, including all sorts of personal information. You can look at the CV as a comprehensive description of everything you have ever done, all the achievements you are proud of, and all the publications that bear your name.

You need to update your CV every time you accomplish something new academically or professionally. Meaning, whenever you get a new job, publish something new, obtain a new certificate, and so on.

There is no rule of thumb on how long a CV should be - depending on the amount of experience, it can range from 2 to 8 pages.

What to Include on a CV
1.   Full name
2.   Contact information
3.   Professional title, resume summary, or resume objective
4.   Research interests
5.   Education
6.   Publications (both academic papers and books)
7.   Teaching or lecturing experience
8.   Work experience
9.   Conferences and courses
10.   Skills
11.   Certificates
12.   Languages
13.   Grants of fellowships
14.   References

UNIT-V ELEMENTS OF COMMUNICATION

Communication (from Latin commūnicāre, meaning "to share" is the act of conveying intended meanings from one entity or group to another through the use of mutually understood signs and semiotic rules.

Elements of Communication

Communication may be defined as a process concerning exchange of facts or ideas between persons holding different positions in an organisation to achieve mutual harmony. The communication process is dynamic in nature rather than a static phenomenon.

Communication process as such must be considered a continuous and dynamic inter-action, both affecting and being affected by many variables.
1. Context – Communication is affected by the context in which it takes place. This context may be physical, social, chronological or cultural. Every communication proceeds with context. The sender chooses the message to communicate within a context.
2. Sender / Encoder – Sender / Encoder is a person who sends the message. A sender makes use of symbols (words or graphic or visual aids) to convey the message and produce the required response. For instance - a training manager conducting training for new batch of employees. Sender may be an individual or a group or an organization. The views, background, approach, skills, competencies, and knowledge of the sender have a great impact on the message. The verbal and non verbal symbols chosen are essential in ascertaining interpretation of the message by the recipient in the same terms as intended by the sender.

3. Message - Message is a key idea that the sender wants to communicate. It is a sign that elicits the response of recipient. Communication process begins with deciding about the message to be conveyed. It must be ensured that the main objective of the message is clear.

4. Medium - Medium is a means used to exchange / transmit the message. The sender must choose an appropriate medium for transmitting the message else the message might not be conveyed to the desired recipients. The choice of appropriate medium of communication is essential for making the message effective and correctly interpreted by the recipient. This choice of communication medium varies depending upon the features of communication. For instance - Written medium is chosen when a message has to be conveyed to a small group of people, while an oral medium is chosen when spontaneous feedback is required from the recipient as misunderstandings are cleared then and there.

5. Recipient / Decoder - Recipient / Decoder is a person for whom the message is intended / aimed / targeted. The degree to which the decoder understands the message is dependent upon various factors such as knowledge of recipient, their responsiveness to the message, and the reliance of encoder on decoder.

6. Feedback - Feedback is the main component of communication process as it permits the sender to analyze the efficacy of the message. It helps the sender in confirming the correct interpretation of message by the decoder. Feedback may be verbal (through words) or non-verbal (in form of smiles, sighs, etc.). It may take written form also in form of memos, reports, etc.

Steps of communication process

The communication process refers to the steps through which communication takes place between the sender and the receiver. This process starts with conceptualizing an idea or message by the sender and ends with the feedback from the receiver. In details, communication process consists of the following eight steps:

1. Developing idea by the sender: In the first step, the communicator develops or conceptualizes an idea to be sent. It is also known as the planning stage since in this stage the communicator plans the subject matter of communication.

2. Encoding: Encoding means converting or translation the idea into a perceivable form that can be communicated to others.

3. Developing the message: After encoding the sender gets a message that can be transmitted to the receiver. The message can be oral, written, symbolic or nonverbal. For example, when people talk, speech is the message; when people write a letter, the words and sentences are the message; when people cries, the crying is the message.

4. Selecting the medium: Medium is the channel or means of transmitting the message to the receiver. Once the sender has encoded his into a message, the next step is to select a suitable medium for transmitting it to the receiver. The medium of communication can be speaking, writing, signaling, gesturing etc.

5. Transmission of message: In this step, the sender actually transmits the message through chosen medium. In the communication cycle, the tasks of the sender end with the transmission of the message.

6. Receiving the message by receiver: This stage simply involves the reception of sender's message by the receiver. The message can be received in the form of hearing, seeing, feeling and so on.

7. Decoding: Decoding is the receiver's interpretation of the sender's message. Here the receiver converts the message into thoughts and tries to analyze and understand it. Effective communication can occur only when both the sender and the receiver assign the same or similar meanings to the message.

8. Feedback: The final step of communication process is feedback. Feedback means receiver's response to sender's message. It increases the effectiveness of communication. It ensures that the receiver has correctly understood the message. Feedback is the essence of two-way communication.

The Communication Model

The diagram above, also known as the Communication Model is quite simple, yet thorough, in its representation of the communication process. It covers all types of communication. For our purposes today, we shall focus on interpersonal communication.

All communication begins with the sender and ends with the receiver. There needs to be a receiver for the message to be successfully conveyed, but that does not guarantee success. The sender is responsible for successful conveyance, but that does not mean that he or she has absolute control over the process. Clarity of message is obviously important, but not always easy to know beforehand. The sender's personality, beliefs, cultural, education all influence the message and it is important for the sender to be aware of this as he or she is encoding the message. Simply put, encoding is translating information into symbols that represent the ideas or concepts of the message that needs sending. These symbols are usually words in written or spoken form. To ensure successful communication, the sender should know as much about his or her audience – the receiver – as possible in order to focus and support the encoding process. A lesson by an instructor will be encoded differently for a university classroom compared to an elementary classroom.

In addition to this awareness of self and encoding, the sender must choose the proper*channel* to convey the message. Using the wrong channel may result in miscommunication. A channel can take many forms and can change depending upon the type of message being sent and the desired outcomes of the message. If one of those desired outcomes is immediate feedback, a hand-written, postal-delivered letter would probably not be the best choice. Written and oral channels can take on a variety of forms. Telephones and computers, email and texting are everywhere today; however, social protocols need to be considered. There are times when an email or a text are not appropriate or when a face-to-face communication is preferred over a phone call.

Like the sender, receivers are influenced by internal factors: their personality, their receptivity to the message or their relationship to the sender, their current feelings, mood, or state of mind can affect a message. Their education, culture and prior knowledge can also alter successful message reception.

Once the message moves through the channel, the receiver then decodes it. The receiver interprets the sent symbols and attempts to assign some meaning to them and to the message in general. The receiver uses his or her own experience and the *context*of the message to interpret its meaning.

Feedback is the return message from receiver to sender – a response to the message that can take any number of forms. Even a non-response can be interpreted as feedback. It is the feedback that enables the sender to know whether the message was received successfully or not. Therefore it is essential to the communication process.

This process, though very common, is fraught with potential breakdown at every turn. Spoken or written language is inherently easy to misinterpret. Even a certain look or facial expression can be misinterpreted and cause breakdowns. A misplaced comma, or a thoughtful pause in response to a question can be mistaken for another intention. All of these possibilities (and many more!) are considered "noise," which is anything that can interfere with any part of the process of communication. Noise can be literally "noise" that comes from some outside source. It can also come internally from a sender's or receiver's thoughts or presuppositions. Effective Communication is when the sent message was successfully received and the receiver provides the sender with desirable feedback.

This is a rather laborious explanation of the Communication Process; a process that can take quite some time to explain, and can oftentimes take a split second to occur. In our next article, we'll discuss some of the things that can get in the way of the*Communication Process*.

Formal communication is a system of passing messages and information between positions within an organization through officially designated channels.

Formal communication refers to interchange of information officially. The flow of communication is controlled and is a deliberate effort. This makes it possible for the information to reach the desired place without any hindrance, at a little cost and in a proper way. This is also known as 'Through Proper Channel Communication.'

Characteristics

Following are the chief characteristics of the formal communication:

(1) Written and Oral:

Formal communication can both be written and oral. Daily works are handled through oral communication, while the policy matters require written communication.

(2) Formal Relations:

This communication is adopted among those employees where formal relations have been established by the organisation. The sender and the receiver have some sort of organisational relations.

(3) Prescribed Path:

The communication has to pass through a definite channel while moving from one person to another. For example, to convey the feelings of a worker to the manager, the foreman's help has to be sought.

(4) Organisational Message:

This channel is concerned with the authorised organisational messages only and the personal messages are out of its jurisdiction.

(5) Deliberate Effort:

This channel of communication is not established automatically but effort has to be made for its creation. It is decided keeping in view the objectives of the organisation.

Advantages

The formal communication has the following advantages:

(1) Maintenance of Authority of the Officers:

Formal communication maintains constant relations among the superiors and the subordinates as a result of whom the dignity of the line superiors is maintained. Consequently, it is convenient to control the subordinates and fix their responsibility which is absolutely needed for effective and successful control.

(2) Clear and Effective Communication:

In formal communication, there is a direct contact among the managers and the subordinates. Both understand the capability, habits, feelings, etc. of one another. Managers know as to when and under which conditions their subordinates need information. In this way, this communication is capable of making available timely information. Hence, it is clear and effective.

(3) Orderly Flow of Information:

The information has to pass through a definite route from one person to another. Hence, the flow of information is systematic.

(4) Easy Knowledge of Source of Information:

In this type of communication, the source of each information can be easily located.

Limitations

Following are the disadvantages or limitations of the formal communication: (1) Overload of Work:

In a modern business organisation much information, many messages and other things have to be communicated. Under formal communication, they are routed through a definite channel and this consumes much of the time of the superiors and thus some other important works are left unattended.

(2) Distortion of Information:

This method can be a hindrance in the flow of information. Sometimes the distance between the sender and the receiver is so big that the information has to pass through many hands and by the time it reaches the receiver it is distorted. Thus it fails to serve its purpose.

(3) Indifferent Officers:

The officers do not pay much attention to the suggestions and complaints of the subordinates. In such a case a subordinate may come lose his faith in the effectiveness of communication.

Types of Formal Communication

Formal communication is of two types:

(1) Vertical Communication:

(i) Downward Communication

(ii) Upward Communication

(2) Horizontal Communication. All these types have been clarified in the following diagram:

(Downward Communication) (Horizontal Communication) (Upward Communication)

(1) Vertical Communication

Vertical communication is of the following two types:

(i) Downward Communication:

The communication by top hierarchy with their subordinates is called downward communication. This communication includes orders, rules, information, policies, instructions, etc. The chief advantage of the downward communication is that the subordinates get useful timely information which helps them in their work performance,

(ii) Upward Communication:

This is quite the reverse of the downward communication. This flows from the subordinates to the superiors. The subject-matter of this communication includes suggestions, reactions, reports, complaints, etc. This sort of communication helps the superiors in taking decisions.

(2) Horizontal Communication

Horizontal communication takes place when two individuals of the same level exchange information. Horizontal communication is used by the same level officers to solve the problems of similar nature and profit by the experience of other people. The subject-matter of horizontal communication includes information, requests, suggestions, mutual problems and coordinationrelated information.

Nonverbal Communication

What is nonverbal communication?

Nonverbal communication is the transfer of information through the use of body language including eye contact, facial expressions, gestures and more. Verbal communication is the use of language to transfer information through written text, speaking or sign language.

Nonverbal communication is important because it gives us valuable information about a situation including how a person might be feeling, how someone receives information and how to approach a person or group of people.

Paying attention to and developing the ability to read nonverbal communications is an invaluable skill you can leverage at every stage of your career.

The Importance Of Non-Verbal Communication

1. Repetition – They can reinforce what is already being said
2. Contradiction – They can contradict the message and make the speaker seem untruthful
3. Substitution – They can take the place of words
4. Complementing – They can compliment a verbal message, for instance, a pat on the back
5. Accenting – They can underline a certain point in the message
   Types of Nonverbal Communication

Facial Expressions

Facial expressions are responsible for a huge proportion of nonverbal communication.[1] Consider how much information can be conveyed with a smile or a frown. The look on a person's face is often the first thing we see, even before we hear what they have to say.

Gestures

Deliberate movements and signals are an important way to communicate meaning without words.[2] Common gestures include waving, pointing, and using fingers to indicate numeric amounts. Other gestures are arbitrary and related to culture.

In courtroom settings, lawyers have been known to utilize different nonverbal signals to attempt to sway juror opinions. An attorney might glance at his watch to suggest that the opposing lawyer's argument is tedious or might even roll his eyes at the testimony offered by a witness in an attempt to undermine his or her credibility. These nonverbal signals are seen as being so powerful and influential that some judges even place limits on what type of nonverbal behaviors are allowed in the courtroom.

Paralinguistics

Paralinguistics refers to vocal communication that is separate from actual language.[3] This includes factors such as tone of voice, loudness, inflection, and pitch. Consider the powerful effect that tone of voice can have on the meaning of a sentence. When said in a strong tone of voice, listeners might interpret approval and enthusiasm. The same words said in a hesitant tone of voice might convey disapproval and a lack of interest.

Consider all the different ways that simply changing your tone of voice might change the meaning of a sentence. A friend might ask you how you are doing, and you might respond with the standard "I'm fine," but how you actually say those words might reveal a tremendous amount of how you are really feeling.

A cold tone of voice might suggest that you are actually not fine, but you don't wish to discuss it. A bright, happy tone of voice will reveal that you are actually doing quite well. A somber, downcast tone would indicate that you are the opposite of fine and that perhaps your friend should inquire further.

Body Language and Posture

Posture and movement can also convey a great deal of information.[4] Research on body language has grown significantly since the 1970s, but popular media have focused on the over-interpretation of defensive postures, arm-crossing, and leg-crossing, especially after publishing Julius Fast's book Body Language.

Proxemics

People often refer to their need for "personal space," which is also an important type of nonverbal communication.[5] The amount of distance we need and the amount of space we perceive as belonging to us is influenced by a number of factors including social norms, cultural expectations, situational factors, personality characteristics, and level of familiarity.

For example, the amount of personal space needed when having a casual conversation with another person usually varies between 18 inches to four feet. On the other hand, the personal distance needed when speaking to a crowd of people is around 10 to 12 feet.

Eye Gaze

The eyes play an important role in nonverbal communication and such things as looking, staring and blinking are important nonverbal behaviors. When people encounter people or things that they like, the rate of blinking increases and pupils dilate. Looking at another person can indicate a range of emotions including hostility, interest, and attraction.

People also utilize eye gaze as a means to determine if someone is being honest.[6] Normal, steady eye contact is often taken as a sign that a person is telling the truth and is trustworthy. Shifty eyes and an inability to maintain eye contact, on the other hand, is frequently seen as an indicator that someone is lying or being deceptive.

Haptics

Communicating through touch is another important nonverbal behavior. There has been a substantial amount of research on the importance of touch in infancy and early childhood.
Harry Harlow's classic monkey study demonstrated how deprived touch and contact impedes development. Baby monkeys raised by wire mothers experienced permanent deficits in behavior and social interaction. Touch can be used to communicate affection, familiarity, sympathy, and other emotions.

In her book Interpersonal Communication: Everyday Encounters, author Julia Wood writes that touch is also often used as a way to communicate both status and power.[7] Researchers have found that high-status individuals tend to invade other people's personal space with greater frequency and intensity than lower-status individuals. Sex differences also play a role in how people utilize touch to communicate meaning.

Appearance

Our choice of color, clothing, hairstyles, and other factors affecting appearance are also considered a means of nonverbal communication.[8] Research on color psychology has demonstrated that different colors can evoke different moods. Appearance can also alter physiological reactions, judgments, and interpretations.

Just think of all the subtle judgments you quickly make about someone based on his or her appearance. These first impressions are important, which is why experts suggest that job seekers dress appropriately for interviews with potential employers.

Researchers have found that appearance can play a role in how people are perceived and even how much they earn. One 1996 study found that attorneys who were rated as more attractive than their peers earned nearly 15 percent more than those ranked as less attractive.

Culture is an important influence on how appearances are judged. While thinness tends to be valued in Western cultures, some African cultures relate full-figured bodies to better health, wealth, and social status.

Artifacts

Objects and images are also tools that can be used to communicate nonverbally. On an online forum, for example, you might select an avatar to represent your identity online and to communicate information about who you are and the things you like. People often spend a great deal of time developing a particular image and surrounding themselves with objects designed to convey information about the things that are important to them. Uniforms, for example, can be used to transmit a tremendous amount of information about a person. A soldier will don fatigues, a police officer will wear a uniform, and a doctor will wear a white lab coat. At a mere glance, these outfits tell people what a person does for a living.

What is body language?

While the key to success in both personal and professional relationships lies in your ability to communicate well, it's not the words that you use but your nonverbal cues or "body language" that speak the loudest. Body language is the use of physical behavior, expressions, and mannerisms to communicate nonverbally, often done instinctively rather than consciously.

Whether you're aware of it or not, when you interact with others, you're continuously giving and receiving wordless signals. All of your nonverbal behaviors—the gestures you make, your posture, your tone of voice, how much eye contact you make—send strong messages. They can put people at ease, build trust, and draw others towards you, or they can offend, confuse, and undermine what you're trying to convey. These messages don't stop when you stop speaking either. Even when you're silent, you're still communicating nonverbally.

In some instances, what comes out of your mouth and what you communicate through your body language may be two totally different things. If you say one thing, but your body language says something else, your listener will likely feel that you're being dishonest. If you say "yes" while shaking your head no, for example. When faced with such mixed signals, the listener has to choose whether to believe your verbal or nonverbal message. Since body language is a natural, unconscious language that broadcasts your true feelings and intentions, they'll likely choose the nonverbal message.

However, by improving how you understand and use nonverbal communication, you can express what you really mean, connect better with others, and build stronger, more rewarding relationships.
